

READING BLACK

Name _____

A Jacqueline Woodson Reading Challenge

Jacqueline Woodson, one of the great writers of our generation, challenges us to use her reading list as a way to look forward and back. The books she has chosen are all by black authors, telling their brilliant and varied stories of the American diaspora - stories this country is attempting to erase through book bans and challenges. She asks us to read these books and consider what other books they remind us of? For those we reread, what is new in the re-reading? What was it we missed the first time around? What thoughts and ideas have changed for us in the re-reading?

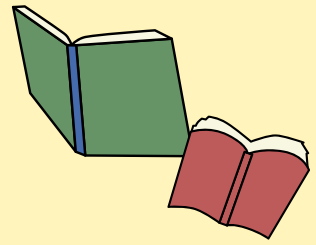

Book Recommendations

- "How the Word is Passed" by Clint Smith
- "Between the World and Me" by Ta-Nehisi Coates
- "Sing, Unburied, Sing" by Jesmyn Ward
- "Why Fathers Cry at Night" by Kwame Alexander
